Moodle forums.

Moodle forums are a tool for communication among class members. They can be used to discuss and exchange opinions about course topics. Forums are usually available, although the instructor can restrict access.

You may have up to thirty minutes to delete your post, depending on course settings.
If you want to reply to a post, click “Discuss this topic”.

At the next screen, click “Reply”.

Type your reply into the Message box. Once again, if you don’t want to get email copies of posts to the forum, change the Subscription setting.

Click “Post to forum” when your comments are finished.
There are several types of forums, but the differences are mostly cosmetic. In a Question and Answer Forum, you must post a reply to a question before you can enter a forum or see any posts.

If you have any questions about Moodle Forums or any other aspect of using Moodle, please contact your instructor or the Moodle support contacts listed on the Student Support page.

You can choose how forum posts are displayed. Try different displays to see which you like best.
